Gold dropped as the US dollar climbed to an 18-month high ahead of key inflation reports that could shape the Federal Reserve's next interest rate decision. Fed Governor Christopher Waller said the recent rise in US bond yields reflects stronger economic growth rather than higher inflation expectations, which remain "well anchored." The International Monetary Fund highlighted risks from elevated public debt levels and rising bond yields that may be driven higher still by war-driven inflation pressures. Currently, traders see only a 19% chance of a Fed rate hike this month but are pricing in an 88% chance of a December increase, according to CME's FedWatch tool.

India gold demand slows as prices rebound; China emerges from holiday lull - Gold demand in India was sluggish as prices rebounded, while trading in top consumer China was subdued during the holiday-truncated trading period. Dealers quoted a discount of up to $6 an ounce over official domestic prices, compared to last week's discount of up to $14. Indians will celebrate the Dussehra festival in October, and Diwali in early November, when buying gold is considered auspicious. In China, bullion traded at a premium of $10 an ounce to the global benchmark price. The Chinese markets reopened after the Golden Week holiday on Thursday. In Singapore, gold was sold between a premium of 50 cents and $1.50 this week, while in Hong Kong it traded flat-to-$1 premium. In Japan, gold was sold between a 50-cent discount and a 50-cent premium.

China's central bank adds to gold reserves for 23rd consecutive month - China's central bank stepped up its gold purchases in September, extending its buying streak to a 23rd consecutive month, official data showed. Gold holdings by the People's Bank of China rose to 77.47 million fine troy ounces at the end of September from 76.73 million ounces a month earlier. China has continued to accumulate gold despite sharp swings in bullion prices this year. The value of China's gold reserves fell to $323.52 billion at the end of September from $350.08 billion a month earlier, the data showed.

China's August net gold imports via Hong Kong rise 4% month – on – month - China's net gold imports via Hong Kong in August rose more than 4% from July, Hong Kong Census and Statistics Department data showed, supported by firm investment demand. The world's biggest gold consumer imported a net 58.491 metric tons in August, compared with 56.193 tons in July, the data showed. China's total gold imports via Hong Kong were 77.137 tons in August, up more than 2% from July's 75.457 tons. China's central bank stepped up its gold purchases for a sixth straight month in August, adding the most bullion to its reserves since October 2023 and extending its buying streak to a 22nd consecutive month, official data showed earlier this month. China has continued to accumulate gold even as bullion prices have risen sharply this year.

Goldman Sachs kept its end-2027 gold price forecast at $5,400 per troy ounce despite the latest US interest rate increase - Goldman Sachs kept its end-2027 gold price forecast at $5,400 per troy ounce despite the latest US interest rate increase, saying tighter policy is likely to slow bullion's rally but not derail it. Goldman Sachs said in a note that it expects "the impact of tighter monetary policy to be felt primarily through a slower near-term appreciation path rather than a lower terminal gold price." Goldman Sachs said continued central bank diversification remains the main structural driver of its constructive gold view. It said a more hawkish Fed could trigger a sharper correction in gold, with prices potentially falling to around $4,070 if the US central bank delivers three more rate hikes this year and signals a higher terminal rate, before recovering to about $4,200 by end-2026 as continued central bank purchases support the market.
