

Acquisition to scale data and AI-led capabilities

Information Technology ▶ Company Update ▶ June 01, 2026

CMP (Rs): 906 | TP (Rs): 850

Cyient has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire 100% stake in Tao Digital Solutions for an enterprise valuation of USD218mn (~9.5x CY27E EV/EBITDA, excluding management incentives and retention schemes). This comprises ~60% upfront cash payout of USD130mn and rest as performance-linked earnouts. This deal will primarily be funded by debt, and a large portion of this is expected to be serviced by the acquired entity's FCF. The transaction enables Cyient to address capability gaps in data engineering and AI applications, participate in large, annuity-led tech/data programs, sign large multi-year deals, and reduce its reliance on project-based revenue streams. The management expects the deal to be EPS-accretive after accounting for integration and one-time transaction-related costs. We have not yet factored this in our earnings estimates (likely to contribute ~12% to DET's revenue run rate with limited EPS impact), pending deal closure. We retain REDUCE and TP of Rs850, valuing the DET business at 12x Mar-28E PER and DLM business at a 20% discount to its CMP.

Deal details and structure

Cyient has signed an agreement to acquire Tao Digital Solutions, an AI-native data and product engineering solutions firm, for an enterprise value of USD218mn. The consideration includes an upfront cash payment of USD130mn at closing (~60% of the total consideration and implying a CY25 EV/EBITDA of ~7.9x), upon which 100% of Tao's shares will be transferred to Cyient. The remaining consideration will be paid in two earnout tranches over two years post-closing, linked to EBITDA growth. An earnout accelerator would apply once synergy-driven EBITDA gets unlocked. The transaction is expected to close by 30-Sept-26, subject to regulatory approvals.

Acquisition to help expand capabilities around software, data, digital, and tech

Tao Digital strengthens Cyient across both upstream engineering foundations and downstream AI application delivery, enabling end-to-end AI solutions at scale. It further adds three key capabilities across lifecycle of 1) data (AI-ready data foundations); 2) software and platform engineering (scalable, AI-enabled platforms); and 3) AI-native talent (specialized expertise to accelerate AI-led transformation and growth). This combination gives Cyient the ability to 1) service the entire value chain of products with the right mix of domain and data expertise; 2) align with customers' 5Y growth plans around services revenue and scale, especially in Aero, Energy, Medtech; 3) increase revenue share from fast-growing Digital and Data and AI services by ~10% from current ~8%; and 4) expand addressable TAM from USD100bn (ER&D outsourcing) to USD2trn.

Acceleration in M&A to weigh on cash position and elevate execution risk

Cyient reported consolidated gross cash of ~Rs17.2bn (net cash: ~Rs15.5bn) at the end of FY26. However, cash outflows from the ~USD93mn acquisition of a 65% stake in Kinetic and the pending share buyback of up to Rs7.2bn are expected to materially reduce this buffer. In addition, the ~USD218mn acquisition of Tao Digital, funded through debt, is expected to further increase the company's leverage profile. The recent acceleration in M&A activity, coupled with a potential rise in leverage, could stretch management bandwidth and elevate both execution and financial risk.
