Nvidia Leads The Market Higher

Nvidia helped fuel a tech rally that saw the AI darling jump by 1.8 per cent and become the first public company to reach a market capitalisation of $4 trillion.

Equity markets closed higher on Wednesday, following President Trump's announcement of new tariffs on seven countries. To date, President Trump has announced new tariffs on 21 countries this week, with tariff rates ranging from 20% to 40%. Trump was particularly harsh on Brazil, imposing a 50% duty on goods from Brazil.

The strength on Wall Street may partly reflect optimism about a potential trade agreement between the U.S. and the European Union. A news report indicated EU negotiators are closing in on a trade deal with the U.S. that would cement higher tariffs than those granted to the U.K.

Asian stocks rose slightly on Thursday, buoyed by optimism following Nvidia's brief surge to a world-record $4 trillion valuation, as investors largely shrugged off U.S. President Donald Trump's latest tariff announcements.

U.S. copper futures widened their premium to the London benchmark overnight as U.S. President Donald Trump ramped up his global tariff assault on Wednesday, announcing a new 50% tariff on U.S. copper imports, which will take effect on August 1.

The Federal Reserve released the minutes of its June monetary policy meeting, which revealed most participants generally agree the central bank is well-positioned to wait for more clarity on the outlook for inflation and the economy before adjusting interest rates.

The Fed's "wait and see" approach comes as participants said economic growth and the labour market remain solid and described monetary policy as moderately or modestly restrictive.

Back home, Nifty fell sharply in the last hour of trade yesterday, signalling profit booking. The session finally settled with a loss of 46 points (0.18%), closing at 25,476.

An attempt by the Nifty to surpass the previous session's high failed, with the index turning southward after making a double top at 25,548. However, the Nifty managed to hold its level above the previous session's low, indicating an ongoing consolidation within its primary uptrend. Support and resistance levels for the Nifty remain at 25,331 and 25,670, respectively. A decisive breakout from this range would give a directional view in the index.

Any progress in finalising trade agreements over the coming weeks and months should reduce uncertainty, while any flexibility in lowering tariffs should help contain inflation and growth concerns.

Indian markets are poised to open subdued, but are likely to witness higher volatility as the session progresses to negotiate weekly derivatives expiry and position ahead of a slew of quarterly results, starting with Tata Elxsi and TCS.

With a 96.5% stake in the insurer, even a 1% sale could raise around Rs 6,000 crore, given LIC's Rs 5.98 lakh crore market cap.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Lupin                                 | Lupin Limited and Zentiva Group have entered into a license and supply agreement for commercialization of Lupin's biosimilar Certolizumab Pegol, across multiple markets globally. Lupin will be responsible for the development, manufacturing and supply of the product within the agreed territories. Zentiva will oversee commercialization activities outside USA and Canada, predominantly in Europe and CIS markets, where it will leverage its extensive European commercial infrastructure and regulatory expertise. Lupin will undertake commercialization in the remaining regions, including USA and Canada. Both parties will invest in the development of the new biosimilar. Lupin will receive an initial payment of US$ 10 million upon execution of the agreement and total development and regulatory milestone payments up to US$ 50 million. The profits from the defined markets will be shared between the two companies. |

Key Events

China Inflation Turns Positive; PPI Continues To Fall

China's consumer prices rose for the first time in five months in June but it remained weak and producer prices marked its 33rd straight month of decline, adding pressure on policymakers to introduce more measures to boost demand and support economy. The consumer price index logged an unexpected annual growth of 0.1 percent in June, offsetting a fall of 0.1 percent in May, the National Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday. Prices were expected to fall again by 0.1 percent. With a marginal increase in June, headline inflation ended a four-month streak of deflation, while Beijing aims to achieve inflation at "around 2 percent" for 2025.

Bank of France estimates Q2 French economic growth of around 0.1%

The French economy grew by around 0.1% in the second quarter, the Bank of France said in its monthly economic outlook on Wednesday, adding that uncertainty over U.S. trade tariffs continued to weigh on businesses. The central bank's survey of about 8,500 companies showed a pick-up in business in the industrial and services sectors, although other areas such as the wine sector were more negatively impacted by the tariff uncertainty. "Our estimates suggest a slight rise of around 0.1% in GDP in the second quarter," the Bank of France said.

Wholesale inventories meet forecast with a 0.3% drop, shows bearish outlook for USD

The latest data on wholesale inventories has been released, revealing a decrease of 0.3%. This figure aligns with the forecasted drop, suggesting a bearish outlook for the US Dollar (USD). Wholesale inventories measure the change in the total value of goods held in inventory by wholesalers. A higher than expected reading is typically seen as negative for the USD, while a lower than expected reading is considered positive. In this case, the actual figure matched the forecasted -0.3%, which indicates a potential negative impact on the USD.

Chart With Interesting Observations

Comex Copper Trade At A Record Premium To Global Benchmark LME

- One of the most popular trades over the last few weeks has been the arbitrage between the COMEX and LME Copper, as a steep premium developed due to an 85%+ decline in LME inventory and soaring inventories in COMEX amid import tariff by the US.
- Traders were selling COMEX and buying LME futures, hoping for the spread to normalise as the supply crunch would end in the next few weeks. However, they were in complete shock when Trump announced 50% tariffs on Dr. Copper, which led to an explosion in the concerned spread.
- The COMEX-LME arbitrage (i.e. the price differential between metal contracts traded on the US based COMEX and UK based LME) jumped +138% day on day to nearly $2600.
- The implication of higher copper prices in US can be seen in manufacturing industry.
