Volatility is expected to make its presence felt today.

U.S. equity markets closed lower on Thursday, with growth segments leading the downside. Shares of semiconductor manufacturer Marvell fell by nearly 20% after the company reported better-than-expected earnings; however, forward guidance disappointed, highlighting the high bar of expectations for companies exposed to artificial intelligence.

Nasdaq fell more than 10% since peaking last December, confirming it is in a correction as U.S. President Donald Trump's announcements on tariffs fuelled investor uncertainty.

President Donald Trump suspended on Thursday the 25% tariffs he imposed this week on most goods from Canada and Mexico. This is the latest twist in a fluctuating trade policy that has whipsawed financial markets and fanned worries over inflation and a growth slowdown.

The exemptions, covering the two largest U.S. trading partners, expire on April 2, when Trump threatens to impose a global regime of reciprocal tariffs on all U.S. trading partners.

The US trade deficit widened to a record in January as companies scrambled to secure goods from overseas before President Donald Trump imposed tariffs on America's largest trading partners. The gap in goods and services trade widened 34% from the prior month to $131.4 billion, larger than all but one estimate.

Investors are keenly awaiting Friday's employment report to gauge the health of the U.S. economy and the Federal Reserve's future interest rate trajectory amid fears the new tariffs, coupled with rising raw material costs at factories, suggest inflation may increase in the coming months.

Markets in Europe traded modestly lower following the European Central Bank's decision to lower its policy rate by 0.25% to 2.5

Asian stocks followed US equities lower as investors retreated from risk assets amid uncertainty over President Donald Trump's tariffs. Bitcoin fell as details of a US strategic reserve underwhelmed.

Shares in Australia, Japan, and South Korea all fell, with benchmarks sliding more than 1%. On Thursday, an index of US-listed Chinese companies outperformed Wall Street.

Back home, Nifty advanced for the second consecutive session yesterday, gaining 207 points (0.93%) to close at 22,544, driven by short covering and firm global cues. Nifty has closed above its 10-day exponential moving average (EMA) of 22,472, signalling a bullish short-term trend. The next resistance zone is expected between 22720-22725, where the 21-day EMA and previous swing low converge. Support for Nifty has moved higher to 22300.

Traders should prepare for larger swings across different asset classes during what might be a period of significant market shifts. Indian markets are poised to open lower on Trump's tariffs, fuelling uncertainties.

Key Events

US trade deficit hits record high in January on imports surge

The U.S. trade deficit widened to a record high in January amid front-loading of imports ahead of tariffs, suggesting that trade could be a drag on economic growth in the first quarter. The trade gap surged 34.0% to an all-time high of $131.4 billion from a revised $98.1 billion in December, the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) said on Thursday. The percentage change was the largest since March 2015. Economists polled by Reuters had forecast the trade deficit soaring to $127.4 billion from the previously reported $98.4 billion in December.

Minor increase in Wholesale Inventories, USD sentiment turns bearish

The latest economic data reveals a slight increase in Wholesale Inventories, a key indicator reflecting the total value of goods held in inventory by wholesalers. The actual figure for the period stands at 0.8%, a minor uptick from the forecasted and previous figures of 0.7%. This slight increase in Wholesale Inventories was unexpected, as market analysts had predicted a stable figure of 0.7%, consistent with the previous period's data. The rise to 0.8% indicates a higher than expected accumulation of goods in the wholesale sector, which is typically interpreted as a negative or bearish sign for the USD.

Brazil's fourth-quarter economic growth forecast to have slowed: Reuters poll

Brazil's economy is forecast to have moderated in the final quarter of last year due to slower growth in private consumption and investment, a Reuters poll showed. The economy expanded by 0.5% in October-December over the previous three-month period, according to the median estimate of 21 economists polled February 26-March 3. The yearly rate was estimated at 4.1%. A 0.5% rise would imply a deceleration from 0.9% in the third quarter.

Nifty : Upside momentum is gaining strength. The next upside hurdles to be watched around 22750-22800 levels.

Nifty Metal : In the process of sharp upside breakout of multiple resistances. Metal stocks could be in limelight ahead.
