

EVENING ROUNDUP

Daily Evening Report on Bullion, Base Metals and Energy Commodities

Wednesday, February 11, 2026

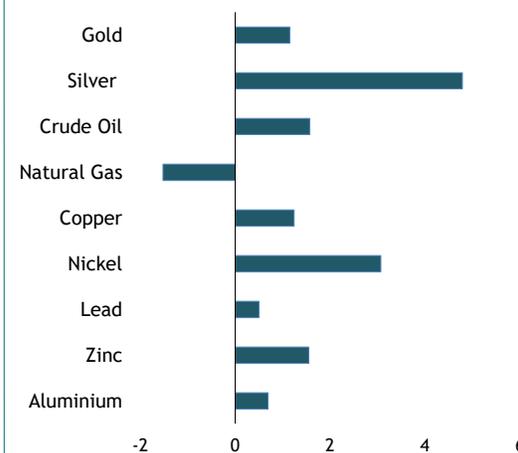

- Precious metals edged up as U.S. dollar and Treasury yields slipped ahead of key non-farm payrolls report due for today for clues on the Federal Reserve's policy outlook. Both spot gold and spot silver gave up much of their January gains, with gold trading near USD5050 per troy ounce and silver around USD83 per troy ounce today.
- China's central bank extended its gold purchases for a 15th consecutive month in January, data from the People's Bank of China showed. The country's gold reserves rose to 74.19 million fine troy ounces at the end of January, compared with 74.15 million a month earlier.
- The U.S. unveiled plans to rally its allies into a preferential trade bloc for critical minerals, proposing coordinated price floors as part of broader efforts to reduce China's dominance over materials vital to advanced manufacturing. The latest list was expanded to include commodities such as silver, copper, and aluminium.
- Crude oil prices edged higher, supported by heightened risk as U.S.-Iran negotiations remained fragile. Additional strength came from signs of a narrowing supply surplus, aided by improving demand trends from India.
- OPEC+ agreed to keep oil production unchanged for March during its latest meeting. OPEC had previously paused the rollback of its voluntary production cuts for January and February in response to weakening crude prices.
- NYMEX natural gas futures languished near three week low amid rising production and forecasts for milder weather over the next two weeks, which are expected to curb heating demand through late February.
- The U.S. Energy Information Administration said U.S. natural gas production is expected to climb to a new record in 2026, while domestic demand is projected to remain steady. The agency forecasts dry gas output to increase from the record 107.6 billion cubic feet per day in 2025 to 110.0 bcf in 2026 and 111.2 bcf in 2027. Meanwhile, U.S. gas consumption is projected to hold at 91.6 bcf in 2026, matching the record set in 2025, before easing slightly to 91.5 bcf in 2027.
