Buy FORTIS @ 794 with a Target of 892 and a Stop Loss at 745

Duration: 1 month

FORTIS is witnessing buying interest near its previous weekly swing-high breakout zone, with the weekly candle showing signs of support and a potential rebound. After peaking around ₹1,100 in late 2025, the stock underwent a significant correction and has now approached a crucial horizontal demand zone of ₹750. This zone presents an important support base for stabilization and a potential recovery towards higher levels.

The momentum indicator also signals the possibility of a recovery, with the Relative Strength Index (RSI) at 31.71, nearing the oversold territory. The RSI level, combined with the stock's proximity to the crucial demand zone, indicates scope for a technical rebound as buying interest improves. Sustaining this support zone could pave the way for an upside towards ₹892.

For positional traders, FORTIS can be considered around ₹794, with a stop-loss at ₹745. The stock is showing signs of stabilisation near the crucial ₹750 demand zone, and sustained buying interest from this support area could drive a recovery towards the ₹892 target.
