NIFTY CHART

FII buying remains supportive, with foreign investors extending their buying streak for the 11th consecutive session on November 25.Nifty witnessed strong buying interest from the opening bell, sustaining trade above the 25800 zone, although the index remained capped below the psychological 26000 mark. The broader trend remains positive, supported by sectoral rotation and sustained liquidity, with the index holding above its 5 DEMA. However, momentum indicators remain in overbought territory, with RSI at 71 and ADX at an elevated 57, signalling a mature trend and the possibility of intermittent profit booking. The bearish engulfing pattern on the daily chart would be invalidated on a sustained move and close above 26000, potentially opening the way towards 26370–26400. Global cues are mixed but improving, with Asian markets trading higher after a mixed Wall Street session. Brent crude is hovering around $94.75/barrel, while gold is near $3,579/oz. The 25800 zone remains the immediate support to monitor. Traders should look for sustained buying above 26000 for further upside, while avoiding aggressive chasing given stretched momentum readings.n
