The stock has recently witnessed a significant erosion from the 9050 zone and has shown signs of bottoming out near the 7500 level with a significant revival visible to improve the outlook and expecting for further upward move in the coming days. The RSI has corrected well and is currently well positioned near the oversold zone with indication of a positive trend reversal to signal a buy with much upside potential visible and can carry on with the positive move further ahead. With the chart technically looking good, we suggest buying the stock for the upside targets of 9800 and 10400 levels keeping the stop loss of 7000 level.
